National Spirit Among the Aboriginese, Says Cato Sells.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, July 11 .- The deeds numbers in the military services are hardly more inspiring than those of the women and children left behind. Getting Along Fine-Hood Satter. This is a partial account of the anvations when the "Great White Fathand races inhabiting this land of freedom to rise in its defense.

Resorting to methods of the white man to raise money, the Omaha tribe recently held an auction for the Red Cross which netted $2,000, including $300 for a prize goat.

The boys of a school in the northwest gathered 2,000 pounds of Sphagnum moss for surgical absorbent pads. Some 400 Christmas boxes were reported, which is incomplete, as nearly all of the 120 boarding schools have service flags with stars ranging in and the pupils of these schools are sentatives. One of the larger schools reported a Students' Friendship War Fund, with $750 on hand and twelve; Investment Company to J. R. and Luia | war savings societies. This school in and 14 Baby Bonds.

On a small reservation far north, vere and the Indian must struggle for the necessaries of life, more than one dollar per capital for every adult was paid in cash for the Red Cross and other war rolled purposes. In the Southwest where the parched descrt' Jane McDonald, who had been the gives scant returns and sheep raising guest of Miss Mary Greer on Quincy is the chief means of support, many fleece of weel for the Red Cross and the superintendent plans the experiment of spinning this wool and knitting it into socks, sweaters, etc., by the Indian women.

In a Moniana district where the Indians are nearly all full-bloods they voluntarily held meetings and each one who has a growing wheat crop promised to donate one sack of wheat for war rollef work. On another reservation where the Indians are very poor nated an abundance of handsome bead work and other curios to be sold for the Red Cross.

The superintendent of one of the boarding schools for girls of the Five Civilized Tribes in Oklahoma declared the gfris are deeply interested in all war work and respond readily to requests for additional garments. The very small girls knit up the scraps of yarn into refugee caps, afghan squares, etc. Also they utilize the scraps from the hospital garments making quilt blocks. Larger scraps are used for small underskirts for the refugees. Gun wipers have been cut by the hundred.

From a northern Minnesota reservation, where it is believed the first Indian Red Cross auxiliary was started in the spring of 1917, the president of the auxiliary writes:

"The auxiliary numbers 48 and this from a community of less than a hun-dred adults. Some of these women have walked to the weekly meeting place across the ice from Old Agency when the temperature was twenty degrees below zero. They have sewed on hospital chirts and socks and just as their white sisters of the cities have done.

But Gallant Aviator's Sacrifice Was Not Needed. atting 17 -- 134

PARIS, June 18 - (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)-The gallantry and self-sacrifice of aviators is illustrated in the story of a captainobserver and his protector-pilot who have just escaped death after a perilous flight in Lorraine.

The captain was assigned to observation duty only, with a pilot as protector in a swift Spad accompanying him to guard against enemy attack The attack materialized quickly enough, but so suddenly that the pilot could not warn the intent captain, and so quietly that the captain did not notice the three German machines that come swooping down from far above

The pilot saw at once that there was but on way to save the unconscious andabsorbed captain-by drawing the attack upon himself-and this he did. His Spad machine was soon shot through with bullets despite his utmost efforts, and in no time he was twirling earthward. The captain had been attracted by the machine gun fire and was making rapidly for the French lines in his slower machine.

The German attacking machines. sceing the Spad apparently hopelessly disabled went after the observer's airplane. They never succeeded in catching up with it. The captain was mourning the loss of his friend, the pilot, when a telephone message informed him that the latter had landed safe-
